

Ibrahim M. Mansour

Prof. of Arabic Lit.

Damietta University – Egypt.

ibrahimansour@du.edu.eg

Between Two Epochs

The Egyptian Young Women Writings in 1932 and In 2007

The writing of the Egyptian young women still needs to be investigated and researched. In two separate eras, the Egyptian young women used to write about their sufferings as well as their lives in general. Miss Aisha' Abdul Rahman was the example selected to prove what she wrote in 1930s. The second epoch is the first decade of 21st century; the Egyptian young female bloggers present the stories of their lives too. This essay investigates the differences between the writings in these .two cases

Keywords: Egypt, The Egyptian University, The Egyptian young women, writing, Bloggers, Salafiyya.

Published in; Language and Communication through Culture, the fifth annual international conference, Ryazan State University, Russia, June 24 – 25, 2012.